MISSION MATTERS - JUNE 2020

Greeting Parishioners

As the winter solstice approaches, more and more, I would like to just snuggle down in bed, stay warm and ignore the chaos that is swirling around in this big messy World. Every day, however, I choose not to give into those feelings (1) because it is one of the strategies I use to keep depression at bay, and, (2) to actively live out my Faith requires me to be aware of what is happening, so, where I am able to, and where it is appropriate to, I can actively respond.

The Five Marks of Mission is the Anglican Communion's Statement of commitment to, and understanding of, God's holistic/integral mission. The Fourth Mark is to transform unjust structures of society, to challenge violence of every kind, and pursue peace and reconciliation. Theoretically, if we have been transformed by our Faith, we should all be equipped to respond. Often though, we simply fall short and need to do an audit of our attitudes to race, status and gender..... How do we value other lives, how do we equip ourselves to love our neighbour regardless of attributes that define them? Have we done the self-reflection to look at our own prejudices, to open our eyes to what life is like for those of cultures different to our own, or to really hear the cries of those who are hurting? Or have we relegated social justice to the too hard basket?

Each will have his/her own response to the questions I pose or may not know how to respond or where to start. If you are new to this journey, I suggest you honestly look at one prejudice you have and then take a small step to alter that belief. I privately did this some years ago, when it shamefully dawned on me, that over the years, unconsciously I had developed a prejudice against Asians. To help me break down my unchristian attitude, I decided that each shopping day to have coffee in cafes that had Asian staff. I guess the real breakthrough for me came from the casual conversations I had with two staff in particular. There has been a flow-on effect from this self-development work I covertly did. Some of the tenants I have selected to live in our rental have been Asians, and I, honestly, do not think I would have made the same choice unless I had changed my attitude. Yes, because of language, the communications were sometimes painfully slow, but it was an overall joy to get to know and serve them.

The BLM protests have coincided with Te Pouhere Sunday in the Anglican Church calendar. This day celebrates our life as the three Tikanga Anglican Church of Aotearoa, New Zealand, and Polynesia. The three tikanga model endeavours to recognise and encourage us to journey together as three equal strands: Maori, Pakeha and Pasifika. This structure was established in 1992 and was a genuine attempt to share resources and honour each culture that made up the Church in Aotearoa. Yes, there have been some difficult issues to work through, but overall, it is working. On Te Pouhere Sunday, Bishop Justin Duckworth, from the Wellington Diocese, delivered an insightful sermon, that focused on a Christian response to the issues being raised by the protests that are currently occurring in Aotearoa. To listen please click on <https://www.facebook.com/anglicanmovement/videos/1872683892869666> and go to approximately 40 minutes in. It will also be on the Anglican Movement website, but as I write this, it has not yet been posted.

Another resource you may find helpful is on the NZCMS website under news/views and titled "Growing in Partnership". Finally, there is a 5 minute reflection by Ana Fletcher, an intercultural enabler in the Anglican Church, on a more global aspect of injustice. Currently, it is not only race relations that are in the spotlight, but also the behaviour of the police. Did you realise that there is a Police Christian Support Network and approximately 35% of sworn New Zealand Police are Christian? I certainly didn't. About a year ago, the Bible Society began working with PCSN on a special-edition Bible for our Police Force, that contains content that is relevant to them. Because of the tailored content, it is hoped more officers will delve into it. Each gift of $9 dollars will provide one Bible for a Police Officer. I think this is an excellent chance to help sustain and guide the Police in the challenging situations they encounter. If you would like to donate you can put your donation in the offertory bag clearly marked "Bible Society - Police Bibles" or give online. The Bible Society's account number is: 03 0558 0245656 02.

AUDIO VISUAL TRAINEES

We are looking for regular parishioners to learn audio visual skills at St Tim's to join our technical team. We have a roster of long serving and reliable operators, but at times we will need replacements and relievers, who will be drawn from trainees.

For the projection we have a training slot on the second Sunday of the month from 9.00 am. Trainees will ideally have a background in regular multi software computer use and will be keen to combine their technical, troubleshooting and creative skills to produce a seamless display every time.

For sound we have a training slot on the third Sunday of the month from 9.00 am. Trainees will ideally have a knowledge of the physics of electricity and sound, as well as a love of music; to combine all of the incoming instruments and vocals into a pleasing mix to support the worship, and to support the band's different monitors.

If you would like to apply please contact John Glue indicating which skill you would like to start with. Ph: 022 167 4047 Email: jmglue368@gmail.com
